Community Action Transit

Washington County Community Action Council, Inc.'s Community Action Transit (CAT) program started in 2009.

The program is a product of the Transportation Subcommittee of the Wash. Co. Disabilities Advisory Committee. The committee recognized the significant unmet transit needs and was determined to provide a more coordinated human service transportation network that offered high quality transportation for the elderly, disabled, and low income populations in Washington County, MD in the most cost effective manner.

CAT provides employment and disability transportation as well as medical appointment transportation for the elderly, disabled and low income citizens of Washington County.

CAT is also available to meet additional transportation needs for groups and individuals upon request if dates are available.

In 2010 Washington County Community Action Council, Inc. took over the Hopewell Express and has since provided FREE employment transportation for employees of Hopewell Road businesses. Hopewell Express operates Monday—Friday from downtown Hagerstown to the Hopewell Road corridor.
